Taxpayer's Concern

Little Rock leaders of progress are moving out again in two areas of concern to Arkansas taxpayers.

On one hand, there is a cry for redistribution of departments at the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville to the University of Little Rock campus because Fayetteville is becoming too crowded.

Then on the other, there is a continued moan for completion of phase one of the East-West Expressway in Little Rock because the streets there are too crowded to handle the traffic.

One Little Rock newspaper recently called for a remedy to the Fayetteville campus, "crowding," saying some departments there would "obviously be more practical at the Little Rock branch." Journalism and law departments were most prominently mentioned as candidates for the Little Rock campus.

It seems like only yesterday Little Rock aspirants of education were asking for just a university designation, a campus and a few million dollars in tax money to get started. Now we're to the point of moving entire departments to Little Rock.

"Cancerous growth" was the term used in attempting to show evidence why some departments should be situated in Little Rock.

At the other end of this growth spectrum is the bemoaning of the necessity for the multi-laned East - West Expressway in another Little Rock newspaper.

Now, if Little Rock needs another multi-laned expressway at the expense of Arkansas taxpayers to handle its already burdensome traffic, why would it want to spend more tax money to add to the traffic problem by moving university departments from Fayetteville to Little Rock?

Would it not, using the same reasoning, be just as sound to start moving some of the state government buildings—and thus employees—out of Little Rock to other cities in Arkansas to ease those old growth pains in the capital city?

Who knows? That might even eliminate the need for that expenditure for the East-West Expressway.—El Dorado Daily News.

Exiles Claim
Forces Are Still Fighting

MIAMI (AP) — Discounting Fidel Castro's claim that an invasion force has been crushed, militant exiles say their guerrillas are still fighting in eastern Cuba and are winning support from their countrymen.

Alpha 66, the Miami-based exile organization that launched the expedition one week ago, said Thursday night "the war of liberation has started, and the flame of freedom will not die" in Cuba.

"Castro has reasons to be crying in panic and to be in madness," exile spokesman Andres Nazario Sargent said. "Our men not only landed successfully, but also were welcomed and joined by fellow countrymen."

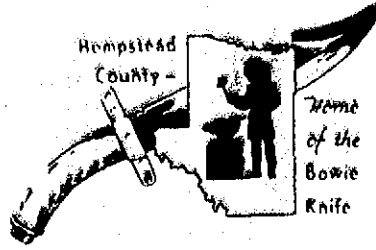

Castro, in a Havana Radio broadcast, said earlier Thursday that all but four of the invaders had been killed or captured and that his troops had surrounded the other four.

Castro said four raiders were killed and five captured.

Cockrill to Visit With Republicans

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Rep. Sterling R. Cockrill Jr., of Little Rock, celebrated new member of the state Republican party, plans to begin a tour of the state next week to get acquainted with the party faithful.

Cockrill said Thursday in an interview that a visit Tuesday with the Pulaski County Republican Committee would be the first in a series of meetings he plans with GOP groups throughout Arkansas.

He said his visits with the Republican organizations would not be part of his possible candidacy for statewide office.

"I'm not going to them as a candidate for office," Cockrill said. "I want to express to them my reasons for joining them and give them the philosophy I had as an independent Democrat."

Cockrill, former speaker of the Arkansas House and majority leader in the 1969 regular session and this year's special session, announced last week that he was switching from the Democrats to the GOP.

He said at that time that he intended to run for governor or lieutenant governor, depending on the re-election plans of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller and Lt. Gov. Maurice Britt, the Republican incumbents. Rockefeller has not revealed his plans, but Britt has said he did not want to seek a third term.

Cockrill said Thursday that he had received a pile of letters and telegrams in response to his switch and that it had been favorable.

"The response strengthens my feeling that the Democratic party is more a party of politicians than is the Republican party," Cockrill said. "... What inspires me is the number of people at the grassroots level who are getting over the apathy that let the Democratic party become what it has."

Warnings in Turkey Should Be Heeded

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Preparing for the summer invasion of tourists, police have posted notices headed: "Warning about all narcotics, notice for the tourists, beatniks, hippies."

Possession, use or sale of any narcotics is a serious crime punishable by a minimum three-year jail sentence, the notices warn.

The maximum penalty is listed in the English version as "eternal imprisonment." It means life sentence.

Muzaffer Caglar, director of security in Istanbul, says a 250-man police squad will deal with unkempt tourists prone to use narcotics.

Istanbul, in particular the hippie hotels around the Great Blue Mosque, has become a favorite stop for hippie travelers.

To Freeze or Not to Freeze Big Question to Many Homemakers

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

To freeze or not to freeze, that is the question asked often by homemakers, with apologies to William Shakespeare. A large percent of our homes either have a freezer or are considering purchasing one. But, alas! Too often the homemaker doesn't fully understand the needs and problems in freezing fresh and prepared foods and in selecting, using and caring for freezers.

Stop reading right here if you already know all there is to know about food preservation with a freezing unit. On the other hand, if you are like most of us and have a few—or a few jillion—questions, you will be glad to learn that the Extension Service will offer an excellent training opportunity in May to help with food-freezing problems.

Complete home prepared meals, taking very little of the homemaker's time at the last minute, sounds like a fairy tale. But this can happen at your home, even if it does take a little more than waving a magic wand to make it all come true.

Remember that some foods change flavor, color, or texture in freezing. A knowledge of how foods react to freezing will help you determine which ones you want to freeze and what adjustment to make in your preparation. Changes in foods that result from freezing will be discussed at the training sessions.

The people who will direct the instruction and study are Elizabeth Ellis, Extension Home Management Specialist who was here for the Pots & Pans training and the Laundry Fair, and Marjorie Phillips, Extension Nutritionist.

A guide will be given to find out if your recipes will freeze satisfactorily, and there will be a quantity of recipes available of foods suitable for freezing. Many also wonder what packaging material is best to use and how to tell if make-shift containers could be used.

Every homemaker is already saving in the form of assorted sizes in which frozen foods were purchased, and the discovery has probably been made that these light-weight containers are easily upset and come crashing down from their perch with an awful roar. So stack them either high or low but not in the most-used area of your kitchen cabinet.

Even if you are not too fond of TV dinners, their containers are nice to have for re-use. When small amounts of various foods become "left-overs," it is nice to arrange the compatible ones on a TV tray, cover with foil, and store in the freezer. Then, some lazy, lonesome lunch-time you have a good meal for one with no effort and little time spent.

Are you pleased with your freezer or freezing unit? If not, you are probably not making the best use of it. To determine how it can serve you better, attend the sessions on use of the home freezer which the Extension Department will be conducting in Hope. They will be held at the Coliseum May 13-14 from 1 to 3 p.m.

Washington (AP) — A fight over funds for the space shuttle and station loomed today as the House called up a $3.6 billion authorization bill for the nation's space program.

"This is the start of the manned Mars landing program," Rep. Joseph E. Karth, D-Minn., said of the $190 million programmed for the shuttle. "It is too early to go into this."

The space shuttle program, envisioned for the last half of the decade, is designed to ferry men and materials to and from an earth-orbiting space station.

The spending ceiling for the program is included in the overall bill which the House Science and Astronautics Committee increased about $300 million over President Nixon's budget. The boost was parceled out to the Apollo program and space flight operations.

But Karth, chairman of a House space science and applications subcommittee, said the Administration has acknowledged about $70 million for the shuttle would be available through its office of advanced research and technology if the $190 million is eliminated.

Karth said NASA has proposed $100 million for manned planetary exploration in fiscal 1977, $300 billion the next year and $1 billion in fiscal 1979.

Washington (AP) — The ancient practice of jailing people who don't pay their fines is under strong attack in the Supreme Court as unfair to the poor.

Lawyers representing indigent people who were jailed because they were too poor to make immediate payment of fines asked the court Wednesday to declare the practice unconstitutional.

Robert G. Fisher, representing a number of Baltimore indigents, told the court that letting an affluent defendant pay his fine and go home while jailing a poor man for nonpayment is not equivalent punishment.

Stanley E. Bass, representing a Chicago man kept in jail beyond his term because he could not pay an additional fine, said time spent in jail is a more severe penalty than paying a fine.

"Society looks on it differently," Fisher said. "A man who has gone to jail is a criminal. A man who has paid a fine has had an unfortunate experience."

Washington (AP) — Forty-seven states make the annual switch from standard time to daylight saving time Sunday morning.

Officially, clocks are set ahead an hour at 2 a.m. But there's no law against doing it at bedtime tonight. The last hour is regained Oct. 25, when standard time again is in effect.

Under the federal Uniform Time Act, states may exempt themselves from the time change. Michigan, Arizona and Hawaii have done so.

A group of Indiana theater owners has asked the federal court to place the entire state in the central zone. Now, 12 counties are on central time while the rest of the state is in the eastern zone.

Washington (AP) — A book by former Arkansas Prison Supt. Thomas Murton has been purchased by an independent Hollywood producer for an undisclosed amount.

The book, titled "Accomplices to the Crime," deals with conditions in the Arkansas prisons and Murton's attempts to reform them. Murton was superintendent of prisons from January 1967 to March 1968.

Prior to that he supervised Tucker Prison Farm from February 1967 to December 1967.

Ron Silverman, vice president of Ted Mann productions, said Wednesday the company was trying to find a writer to adapt the book, which was co-authored by Joe Hyams.

Calls Conflict in Cambodia
an Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has branded the conflict in Cambodia "clearly a foreign invasion," but says President Nixon needs more time to decide whether the United States will pour arms into the Southeast Asian country.

"The obvious fact is that 40,000 Communist forces are clearly a foreign invasion, and in no sense could this be a pretense of a civil war," presidential press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Friday.

But Ziegler declined to say when the administration will respond to Cambodia's urgent appeals for U.S. arms aid.

Nixon has the whole situation under consideration, Ziegler said, adding, "He is watching it and is concerned with it."

The arms requests have put Nixon in a difficult political position, especially after he announced last Monday the phased withdrawal of an additional 150,000 U.S. troops in Vietnam within the next year.

The White House announced Thursday the United States has approved a plan by the South Vietnamese to send several thousand Soviet-built rifles to Cambodia.

At the same time, Ziegler said, that action does not constitute a reply to Cambodia's repeated requests for U.S. assistance in putting down the Communist forces, a problem Nixon is pondering this weekend.

The President twice this week postponed meetings of the National Security Council, apparently to wait for the situation in Cambodia to jell.

Meantime, many members of Congress are expected to make it clear they oppose any U.S. involvement in the Cambodian conflict.

In a television interview on NBC Friday, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he feels the United States "absolutely" should stay out of Cambodia.

Despite the feelings of Mansfield and other lawmakers, Nixon, in his own Asian doctrine, said last summer on Guam the United States should stay out of Asian civil wars but can offer assistance in the event of external aggression.

Tomato Like
Slow Walk to Yesterday

By JIM BRANUM
Blytheville Courier News

TOMATO, Ark. (AP) — If you would like to take a slow walk into yesterday, to walk down a dusty road that makes up the single street of a hamlet from a simpler time, a place where the tranquility is broken only by the singing of a mockingbird, a place where you can sit on the porch of the general store and whittle and talk with friends... go to Tomato.

Tomato, Ark.
That's where A. J. Mitcheson has his grocery-market, complete with a pot-bellied stove encircled with chairs and old wooden benches.

Tomato is a place where people have mastered the art of being themselves.
On a cold winter day, when the pot-bellied stove is glowing cherry red, the icy wind comes walking down the once gravel road and drives Tomato's old-timers inside where they swap stories about the village's past.

There are at least three versions as to how Tomato received its name. Once called Canadian Reach, the villagers were trying to get the Post Office re-commissioned.

As the story goes, a number of men were sitting in Coleman's General Store puzzling over names when Lettie Coleman came to get a can of tomatoes to fix for lunch. The can sported a photo of a big, red tomato on the label.

Lettie, the store owner's daughter, turned to the men, showing them the can, and said, "Why don't we call it Tomato?" All the men agreed.

Another version:
Lettie came into the store with a bushel basket of just picked field tomatoes. She sat the basket down, picked one of the tomatoes up and said, "We sure grow beautiful tomatoes."

The men agreed, one of them saying, "Why don't we call her (the town) Tomato." And again, as the tale goes, they all agreed.

The third legend says that a wooden crate was nailed to a tree on the bank of the Mississippi River and marked the spot where steamboats tied up to discharge and take on passengers.

The crate, boasting a picture of a big, red tomato, was to be a depository for small mail. Larger items were deposited by the tree.

Since the primary mode of travel and transportation was by the river, steamboat captains came to call the settlement Tomato... and the name stuck.

The town today is well over 100 years old. How much older is difficult to tell. A. J. (Slick) Mitcheson owns an old ledger dating back to 1841 that tells of some salves named Ming, Lillie, Judy and Jim working all year and earning $350 for their owner.

In 1841 Tomato was called Canadian Reach and is thought to have been located about five miles south and east (what is now Tennessee) of the hamlet today.

Not much is known about Canadian Reach other than it had a store and a U.S. Post Office and that the village was settled by people that cut wood for the steamboats.

Records of the hamlet were lost when they were put aboard a barge during the Civil War. The barge pulled out from Osceola, the county seat, and started down the river, presumably to safety.

It was sunk by the Yankees. Tomato has been running from the Mississippi River for many years.

There is no way to end the story of Tomato, her people and the love they have for the river.

China Puts Satellite
Into Orbit

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China announced today that it had launched a satellite into orbit around the earth.

The official New China News Agency said the 381 pound satellite completes one revolution around the earth each 114 minutes and broadcasts the music of "Tung Fang Hung"—The East Is Red—at a frequency of 20,009 megacycles.

The satellite was launched Friday, the agency said.

The agency said the satellite's orbit ranges from 273 miles to 1,480 miles above the earth at an angle to the equator of 68.5 degrees.

"The successful launching of the satellite marks a good beginning in the development of China's space technology," the agency added. "It is a great victory for Mao Tse-tung thought, ... and another fruitful result of the great proletarian cultural revolution."

Negro Youth
Hangs Himself

Charles Ray Chambers, 17, hanged himself last night at his home at 903 North Greening Street. He was the son of Eddie Chambers.

Corner J. T. Honeycutt ruled suicide following an investigation. He said the Negro youth used a light cord.

The incident followed a summons for him to appear in court. He was caught earlier putting rocks on a railway.

Haiti Sealed
Off to Fight
Mutineers

MIAMI (AP) — Haiti was sealed off today after mutineers seized three Haitian coast guard vessels and fired on the island country's capital of Port au Prince.

The shells, apparently aimed at the palace of President Francois Duvalier, injured one person and damaged several homes, the government said.

Duvalier immediately closed airports and halted train service for all but the palace and minister-level officials.

Citizens were ordered to clear the streets.

The curfew was expected to be lifted today.

Arthur Bonhomme, the Haitian ambassador to the United States, said in Washington that Port au Prince was shelled twice by the rebel seamen.

The type of vessels used was not immediately known. In the past, the Haitian coast guard used 95-foot cutters with 40mm cannons.

The ambassador said Duvalier asked the United States for air cover in case trouble erupted again. However, a U.S. State Department official said the Haitians had been advised that "we can't intervene."

Duvalier has been bothered with such outbursts for 13 years since he became president of the small Caribbean country. He gained the presidency on popularity attained as a country doctor.

Haiti shares the Caribbean island with the Dominican Republic.

Fulbright Breaks
Time Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — As of today, Sen. J. W. Fulbright breaks the record for length of service as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The Arkansas Democrat equaled Thursday the mark of 11 years and 76 days set by Republican Sen. Shelby M. Culom of Illinois, who presided from Dec. 18, 1901, to March 4, 1913.

A dozen senators made speeches in praise of Fulbright's length of service and leadership of the committee.

Fulbright, often at odds with the present and past administrations, remarked: "I am overwhelmed, I am unaccustomed to hearing complimentary remarks, in or out of the Senate."

Golden Knights

Hardly a "down-to-earth" activity—but that's the way it always ends! Parachuting as practiced by the U.S. Army Parachute Team is a refinement of this exciting activity; and the aristocrats of the skill who are the team's members are well worthy of the nickname which is theirs—"The Golden Knights."

An Army Sport Parachute Team was first formed in 1959. In 1961 it became the U.S. Army Parachute Team, and in 1962 it adopted the official nickname, "The Golden Knights."

The Knights are more than just a bunch of stunt men. They must, first of all, be members of the Regular Army, highly qualified parachutists, who volunteer for the Army Team.

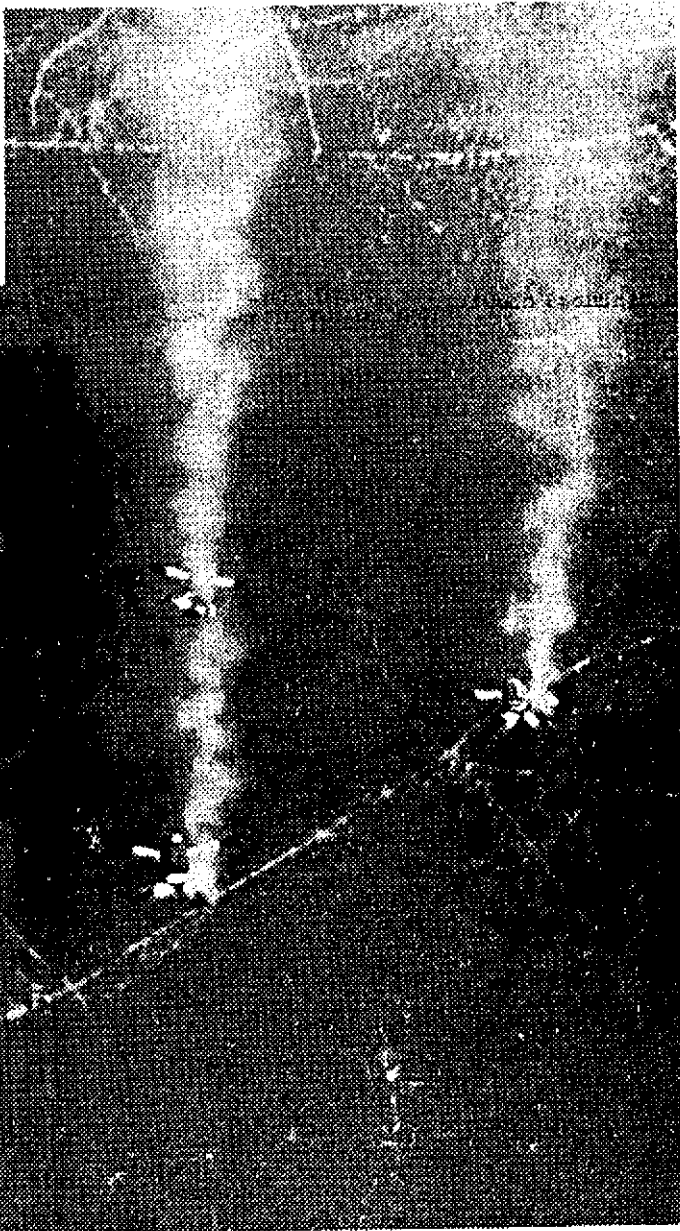

And their work is a highly important job of Army public relations. The Team's two demonstration units spend over half the year on tour, giving free fall displays both at home and abroad, and taking part in competitions. In addition to collecting considerably over half of the world parachuting accuracy records, they have produced two world and five national parachuting champions. But they also perform useful services to research—in the development of new kinds of parachutes, for example, and of new techniques and ways of using parachute jumping.

What do they actually do? Well, as the photographs on this page show, there's a great deal more to it than just taking a deep breath and tumbling out. Free fall isn't as free-and-easy as all that. In fact, it's a highly skilled and controlled exercise. The Knights free fall for up to 70 seconds, at speeds of 120 to 180 miles an hour—and during that time they may link up with other parachutists in the air, pass batons, glide for miles across the sky and arrange themselves in disciplined formation in a kind of breathtaking sky-gymnastics. Competition jumping is usually from up to 6,600 feet, but demonstrations may be from twice as high.

Once their highly-maneuverable parachutes are opened a phase of expertly-piloted fall begins, ending usually with an extraordinarily precise landing on a target which may be only about four inches in diameter.

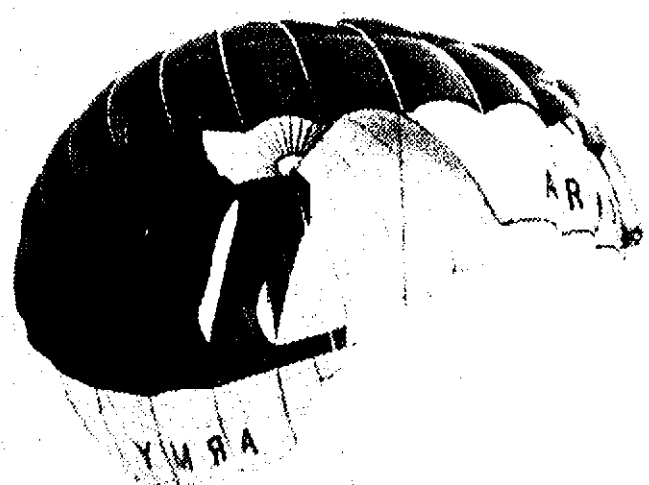

Start of a formation: this is what the first man out sees as he looks back.

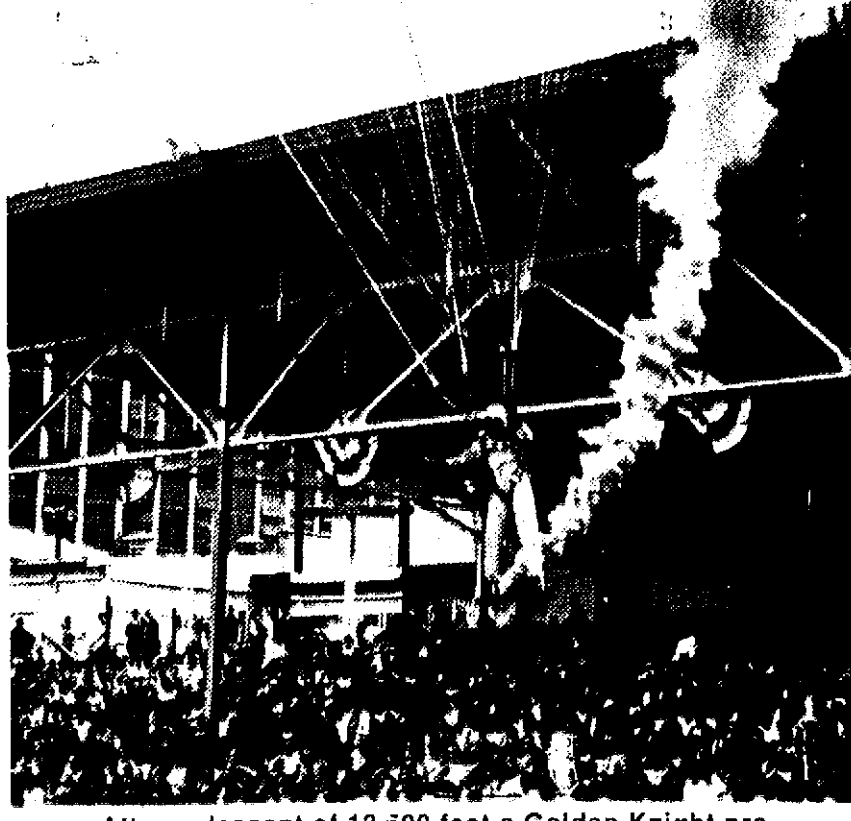

Red smoke billows from grenade on each man's boot in the maneuver at the climax of each free fall demonstration.

Parachutists link arms to form a five-man star while free falling at 120 miles an hour.

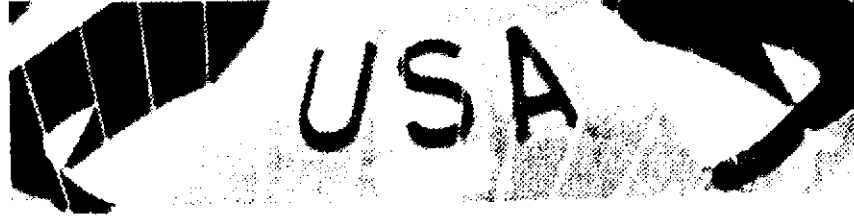

Landing on a four-inch target, traveling at some 20 miles per hour is difficult—particularly at night!

After a descent of 13,500 feet a Golden Knight prepares to land in a stadium during a demonstration.

This is how the four-man diamond formation looks from the aircraft immediately after the last man's exit.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

ILLEGITIMATE PARENT HAS NO RIGHTS

Dear Helen: A year ago I became pregnant but the boy and I did not get married. His parents wanted me to give the child away, so as to preserve their social status in the community. Their strong disapproval was one of the reasons we broke up. But they DID help pay my hospital bills, and a little for support. My lawyer made them! I kept my baby and love him. Now his "illegitimate" grandmother wants to take over. I think she'd like to raise him and push me out, as she "paid for him." Does she have the right to take him away from me?—D.L.

Dear D: Your baby belongs to you. When his grandmother prevented the marriage, she forfeited her rights to claim him as a grandson. If she causes trouble, consult your lawyer.—H.

Dear Helen: I have graduated from high school, but know I could never make it through college. I have made some very foolish mistakes that hurt not only myself but my family.

My parents lost money learning I was not college material. They financed me after I had an unhappy love affair that ended disastrously. You can see they are reluctant now to hand out money for further training that might not "take."

I've been told I'm no longer a child but must go out and make it on my own.

Why then, are they so upset when I want to join the Woman's Army Corps? I can get any type of job training there—free. I would get salary, room, board, clothing allowance, and five years of good experience.

But my folks have heard bad things about the WACs. They feel I would ruin my reputation. What reputation? I've already made enough mistakes so that I'm not exactly lily-white.

Do you think I'm wrong in insisting that the WACs is what I want?—WHAT NEXT?

Dear W.M.: I think the WACs might be a fine opportunity for you. Good luck!—H.

Dear Helen: Please help!

Our father doesn't work. It doesn't bother us too much in the daytime as we are at school, but when we come home and try to watch TV or just sit around, there he is, chewing on his gum. This may not sound bothersome to you, but you should hear him: He'd scream us out of the house if we told him how noisy he was, but it's driving us crazy.

Maybe he'll read this if you print it and learn to chew silently.—KIDS WHO NEED EAR PLUGS

Dear Kids: Let's hope ALL noisy gum chewers read this and realize that Pop, Crackle, Snap is for cereal, not gum!—H.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Real life adventure has been big with the television networks since the success of CBS's National Geographic and ABC's Cousteau series. And NBC, with a spectacular hour Thursday night, may have achieved the most dramatic and gory adventure tale of all when it took viewers on a whale hunt.

The program was filmed on the picturesque Azores island of Fayal. A photographer was with men of the island who harpooned a 40-ton sperm whale then found themselves in danger, surrounded by 30 or more of the huge creatures.

Much of the program leading up to the hunt centered around a 16-year-old island boy who dreamed of becoming a whale hunter. This section suffered from a certain element of amateur staginess and a language problem which even Jose Ferrer's sleek narration could not overcome.

The real star of the program was the camera. The color photography of the sea's, green island and the ocean was stunning. The Azores whale hunters still launch, harpoons and small, frail boats. As in so many of ABC's "American Sportsman" programs, the climax was the kill. Inevitably as it was, the sight of the dying animal thrashing in a sea turned red by its blood must have been as distasteful to many.

The NBC hour was one of the freshest of actuality specials which have been turned up in

Opening lead—♥ 5

Third hand high is taught us from our bridge player's cradle. The reason why this play is usually correct is that third hand should generally attempt to win the trick or to force a high card from fourth hand.

The common exception to third hand high occurs when you hold two cards higher than the first two played that bracket a card in dummy. Usually the bracketing cards are quite close together, like the king-10 to bracket a queen or jack.

In today's hand, Sidney Lazard of New Orleans set some sort of bracketing record when he played the eight-spot on dummy's six. It not only set some sort of record, but it also set declarer, who would have made his contract if Sidney had risen with the ace.

The eight-spot play was eminently correct. Sidney was looking at 21 high-card points in his hand and dummy. Declarer was one of those 16-18 no-trump bidders who never varied.

This left a maximum of three for West and Sidney assumed those three points were the king of hearts. If they weren't, the hand was going to make whatever Sidney did, unless West had led from a six-card suit, in which case either the ace or eight play would succeed.

If West did hold the king, Sidney would set declarer one trick less if the opening suit were a six-carder, the same number of tricks if it were a five-carder, but if the lead were from four to the king, as it was, Sidney's play would win and the ace play would lose.

Imaginative Uses Spur New Designs in Kites

ONE OF WRIGHT BROTHERS' original gliders being test-flown as a kite.

By JIM CROSSLEY
There's not much most people need to know about kites except not to fly them with wire, keep away from power lines and pull them down if it looks like a thunderstorm. Nevertheless, kites have always intrigued mankind and there are many generations of engrossing facts about kites.

Those paper, cloth, wood or metal ships of many shapes which have cleaved the airwaves have had an important past. Airplanes are the direct descendants of kites.

You might be of the opinion that the once-noble device has been degraded to a child's toy but you would be wrong. Even today it still fascinates people.

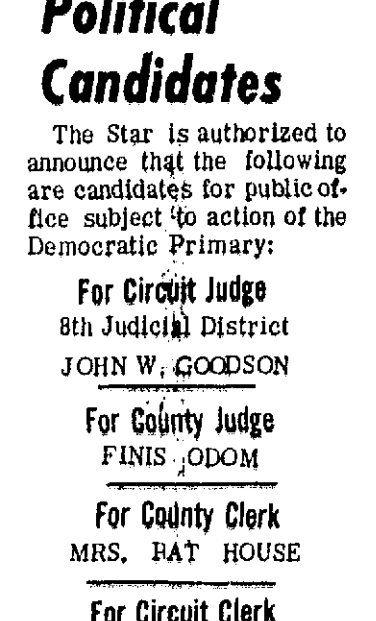

Kites have great status at Atlantic coast resorts such as Hilton Head Island where families and couples buy them at novelty stands and have fun for days maneuvering them high above the stretches of sandy beach.

Fishermen have taken up an ancient use, flying kites out over water to dunk their lures farther out than they can cast.

The "man-lifter" kite carries more weight in water

It's hard to believe, but in 1906 a box kite pulling a float in the water traversed the English Channel, 103 miles in 11½ hours.

Howard's Bat Talks Much Better

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Frank Howard usually lets his bat do his talking but he decided to get his vocal chords into the debate Friday night. The bat won.

The giant slugger unloaded with his bat in the third inning of Washington's 5-3 victory over California, smashing one of the longest home runs in the history of Robert F. Kennedy Stadium.

Howard blasted a pitch by Andy Messersmith down a runway in the upper deck in left field, estimated at more than 500 feet. It was his fourth homer of the season and snapped a 3-3 tie.

Two innings later, Howard was gone. Called out on strikes by umpire Jim Honochick, Howard protested at the plate and continued his squawk from the dugout Honochick, as usual, had the last word— "Goodbye."

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore shaded Kansas City 7-5, Detroit stopped Minnesota 8-6 and Cleveland whipped the Chicago White Sox 4-1. Milwaukee at Boston and Oakland at the New York Yankees were rained out.

In the National League, it was Chicago 6, Houston 3; Atlanta 9, Pittsburgh 0; St. Louis 3, Cincinnati 1; Philadelphia 5, San Diego 4; San Francisco 12, Montreal 3; and Los Angeles 1, New York 0 in 15 innings.

Besides his mammoth homer, Howard started a three-run uprising in the first inning with a two-out walk. Mike Epstein singled and Lee Maye followed with a homer. The Angels scored in the second on Jim Fregosi's two-run single and Roger Repoz knotted it in the third with a homer.

The surprising Tigers made it eight straight victories, sparked by Bill Freehan's tie-breaking two-run homer and Al Kaline's five consecutive hits — two doubles and three singles.

Freehan snapped a 6-6 tie by powering a pitch from Minnesota reliever Tom Hall 405 feet into the left field seats in the seventh inning after Jim Northrup walked.

Dick McAuliffe also homered for the Tigers, while Harmon Killebrew connected for the Twins and Brant Alyea drove in four runs with a pair of doubles.

"I haven't had five hits in a game in a long time — must be as far back as 1955 or 1956," said Kaline, who raised his average 90 points to .373.

The Royals got solo homers from Bob Oliver (two), Jackie Hernandez and Amos Otis and led Baltimore 5-4 when the Orioles displayed some long-ball power of their own. Frank Robinson and Boog Powell hit consecutive homers in the seventh and Powell doubled home an insurance run in the ninth after Pete Richert put down a Kansas City threat. Baltimore starter Mike Cuellar also homered.

Tony Horton's bases-loaded two-run double broke a scoreless deadlock in the sixth inning and started the Indians to their victory over the White Sox.

Hurlers in National Take Charge

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Not content to leave the hitting to the hitters, National League pitchers took matters in their own hands Friday with positive results on three separate fronts.

St. Louis managed just three hits against Cincinnati's rookie flash, Wayne Simpson, but one of them was a sixth inning single by hurler George Culver that touched off a two-run rally and helped the Cards to a 3-1 victory over the Reds.

San Francisco broke an eighth inning tie against Montreal with a pair of three-run homers by Ron Hunt and Dick Dietz but the hit that started the rally was a double by, of course, pitcher Gaylord Perry. The Giants went on to win the game 12-3.

In Chicago, pitcher Ken Holtzman ripped a tie-breaking, two-run double and the streaking Cubs won their eighth straight, knocking off Houston 6-3.

Elsewhere in the National League Friday night, Pittsburgh shut out Atlanta 9-0, Philadelphia edged San Diego 5-4 and Los Angeles edged New York 1-0 in 15 innings.

In the American League, Detroit dropped Minnesota 8-6, Washington trimmed California 5-3, Cleveland defeated Chicago 4-1 and Baltimore knocked off Kansas City 7-5. Rain postponed Milwaukee at Boston and Oakland at New York.

Lou Brock opened the Cards-Reds game with a leadoff homer — only the second run in four starts off Simpson. Then the Reds' rookie shut the door on the Cards until the sixth when Culver, who had been matching zeroes with the youngster, opened with a single. Errors by Tony Perez and Dave Concepcion sunk Simpson, allowing two runs to score and that was all Culver needed.

Perez jolted his ninth homer of the year and two other hits, raising his average to .500. The nine homers broke the National League record for the month of April. The old mark of eight was shared by Lee Walls, Willie McCovey and Wally Moon.

After the Expos had pushed across a run to tie the Giants at 2-2 in the seventh inning, Perry lashed a one-out double. Bobby Bonds walked and Hunt followed with his homer. Then Willie Mays walked, Ken Henderson singled and Dietz slugged another three-run homer.

Lerry had a single and Mays ended an 0-for-15 slump with a single as the Giants added four insurance runs in the eighth-three of them crossing on a pair of wild pitches by reliever Carol Sembera.

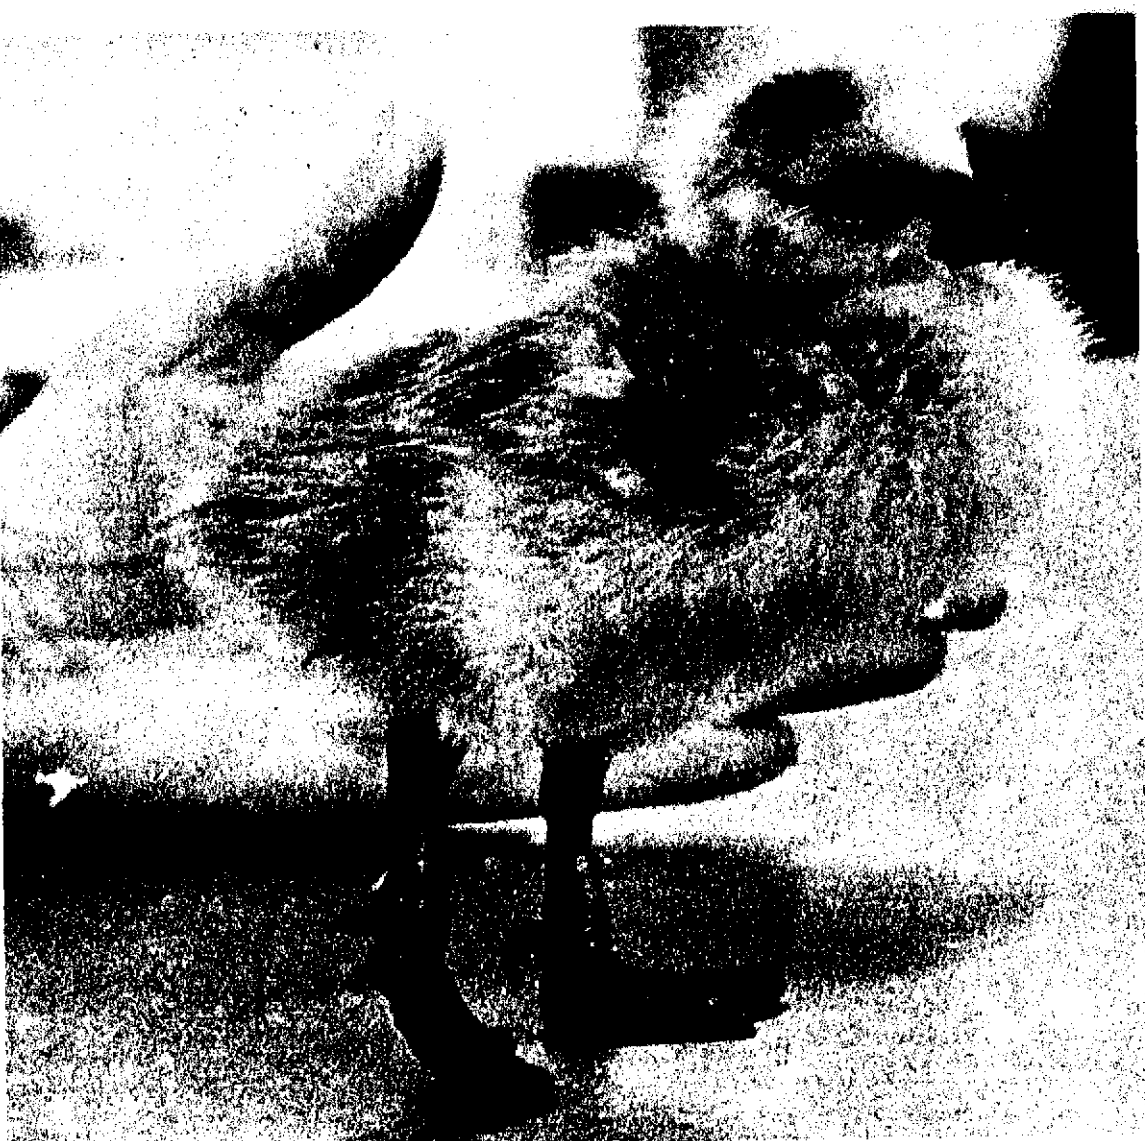

Holtzman had held the Astros hitless until the sixth inning before Houston broke through for a pair of runs. But the Cubs bounced right back in the bottom half with hits by Billy Williams, Johnny Callison and J.C. Martin producing two runs before Holtzman's two-out double brought two more across.

Callison led it with a two-run homer in the seventh as Chicago built its longest winning streak since 1953 when the Cubs strung 10 victories together.

Jim Nash scattered five hits and the Braves halted a six-game losing streak by blanking Pittsburgh. Tony Gonzalez drove in three runs and Rico Carty extended his hitting streak to 15 games for Atlanta.

2-Day-Old Canada Goose—and Disowned 1969 Brother

At left above is a two-day-old Canada Goose gosling hatched on "the Back 40," miniature game preserve of Editor A.H. Washburn, S. Walnut St., Hope. It was hatched April 16 and photographed April 18. Note the identifying mark of a Canadian Honker on the little fellow— feet and legs resembling black rubber boots. Otherwise he bears no resemblance to his older brother now fully grown— Loneldest guy in town, at right, is the gosling's 1969 brother. Hatched last Summer he was the family's pride and joy—until his family started a new nest this March, since when he has been driven out to fend for himself.

We've been calling the White-Fronted Goose (member of the Brant family) which arrived mysteriously at the Back 40 Jan. 4, a gander—but this picture of April 18 makes the designation doubtful. "He" is on a nest of what are unquestionably goose eggs. The beak is open, the tongue is visible, and the hiss plainly says: "Eddie, go home!"

Tennis Meet Limps Into Quarterfinals

DALLAS (AP) — The injury-prone Dallas News Tennis Classic limped into the quarterfinal rounds today.

Injuries have caused three players to withdraw from the tournament, including top-seeded Rod Laver of Australia. Another, Andres Gimeno, is continuing to play despite being hurt in an auto accident Tuesday night.

Gimeno suffered a fractured rib and bruised hip shortly after he and Ron Holmberg of Highland Falls, N.Y., upset the top-seeded Australian doubles team of John Newcombe and Tony Roche.

Gimeno came back Thursday night, however, to upset the No. 2 seeded Newcombe, 4-6, 8-6.

Audrey is a German name meaning "noble."

8-6. Applying an ice pack to his injured rib while changing courts, he fought off match point in the 10th game of the decisive third set.

Today's singles matched Cliff Drysdale of South Africa against Roy Emerson of Australia; Marty Riessen of Evansville, Ill., against fourth-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia; Roche against Fred Stolle of Australia and Roger Taylor of England against Gimeno.

In other singles matches Thursday, Emerson defeated Holmberg, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 and Stolle defeated Dennis Ralston of Bakerville, Calif., 6-3, 6-4.

In doubles Thursday, Drysdale and Taylor defeated Riessen and Ralston, 6-1, 6-4 and Warren Jacques of Dallas and Emerson, defeated Torben Ulrich of Denmark and Ray Moore of South Africa, 6-4, 8-6.

BERKOW Baseball's Future: Appeal to Young

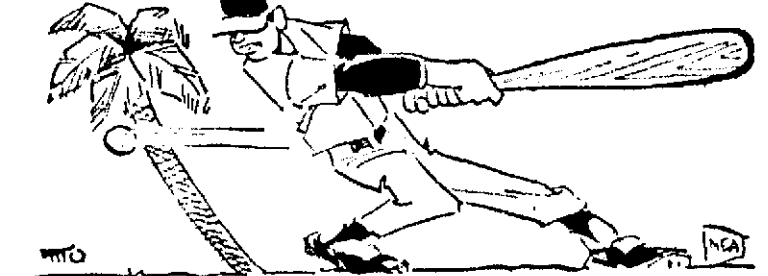

By IRA BERKOW, NEA Sports Editor

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — (NEA) — Most appealing about baseball is that it is the lazy summer afternoon of sports. It is not frenetically and self-consciously modern, which is both its strength and its weakness.

It is the long, leisurely draws on a good cigar after a meal with wine, a stroll in a park down leafy walks and shaded memories, a casual and slightly curious look at a balloon floating into the sky like a pop fly.

Watching baseball is a civilized way of spending a few hours a week. It is not the crashing, rush-hour mayhem of football, nor the eternal running-to-catch-the-bus of basketball. Nor is it the blood-in-the-eye interaction of boxing.

In an age of rootlessness, baseball is rooted in tradition. (To its critics, that sentence would read: "In an age of ruthlessness, baseball is rooted in tradition.") No other sport captures the imagination or memory of youthful fancy as does baseball. The game is a constant for us. Few of its rules and dimensions change. Even the appeal of its records demonstrates this. Many fans are loathe for them to be bettered.

For proof, look at the asterisk alongside Roger Maris' name in "most home runs, season." Babe Ruth's 60 homers in 1927 remains a psychological heart for multitudes. For the same reason, Joe DiMaggio's mark of hitting in 56 straight games in 1941 is a standard that few fans would actually like to see broken.

Baseball is a link for the country in a way that no other sport is. Baseball was here with stiff collars and bustles, before the motor car and the mortar, after man's landing on the moon. No other spectator sport in America has meant so much to so many for so long.

Yet, though the game itself changes little, those who play the game remain, of course, a part of their changing times and environment. And so when Steve Carlton holds out for more money, and Richie Allen does the same, St. Louis Cardinal owner Gussie Busch says, "I just can't understand what's going on, on the campuses and everywhere in our great country . . . (I want to get the) situation back to normalcy." And the phrase "back to normalcy" is a direct throwback to the Harding administration, when the gravest concerns of the day were Prohibition and the lively ball.

And the rootlessness and restlessness of youth poses a threat to traditionalists like Gov. Claude Kirk of Florida who, at a banquet here honoring the New York Mets, said: "Just look at their haircuts (of the Mets' players), and the way they're dressed. By God, they are America the beautiful. Stand up, Mets."

Donald M. Grant, Mets' chairman of the board, added, "I want to echo the words of the governor." Then went on, "The hippies will have us; we must fight; we must rebel." To all this, Mets' pitcher Tug McGraw, 25, raised two fingers in a peace sign and side-burned Mets' outfielder Art Shamsky, 28, said, "If a kid's going to admire me, I want him to admire me for the way I can hit and not how long my hair is."

The hideboundness of the hair issue is symbolic of the older baseball generation's failure to understand the times to the benefit of the game. And how they were so deeply buried in tradition that they did not see until very late that some changes (from help for hitters to divisional play) were needed.
